LOVE & SOLIDARITY

What can people do to change a world full of violence and hate?
Is nonviolent revolution possible?

'Love and Solidarity' addresses these questions through the life and thought of Rev. James Lawson, an African American Methodist minister who worked with Martin Luther King, Jr., to initiate civil rights struggles in the South in the 1960s, and in recent years taught nonviolence organizing to poor Black and Latino workers in coalitions that have remade the labor movement in Los Angeles.

Through interviews with Rev. Lawson and historic film footage, acclaimed labor and civil rights historian Michael Honey and award winning filmmaker Errol Webber place a much needed discourse on nonviolent social change at the forefront of today's struggles against violence and for human rights, peace, and economic justice.
